LOQUACIOUS COUNCILMEN .- The propensity to talk in the City Council appears to be irrepressible. Some members think no measure would be perfect without some elucidation from them; and they take occashon, at all times, to give their views, even though no one differs from them. Last night they displayed their loquacity in an unusual degree; and when the motion to strike out the appropriation to pay the contractors for cleaning the streets was made, Me Weller sweet over one hour in talking Mr. Walker spent over one hour in talking against it, and then voted for it.

One of Sarver's party, who was unknown to any one except his comrades, received a shot in the head, and was carried away, while one or two others were slightly wounded. The whole party then beat a hasty retreat down the stairs, followed by various missiles, which did considerable execution. The which did considerable execution. Bishop was called to the Chair, and R. M. Pomeroy was appointed Secretary.

On motion, a committee of three was appointed to draft resolutions expressive of the sense of the meeting, in regard to the character and virtues of the deceased. A. M. Serles, John Simpkinson, and A. D. Rogers, were named by the Chair as that Committee.

On the return of the Committee they reported the following preamble and resolutions, which were unanimously adopted.

Mr. Snodgrass wanted to offer a petition for damages for a horse killed last Monday, by No. 8 Fire Company, but he had forgotten it; he asked that it be referred. Lost.

Mr. Marsh presented a remonstrance against the action of Council, at its last meeting, in receiving the dedication of that portion of the Cumminsville-avenue inside the corporation line. The remonstrance comes from the Avenue Company, who claim to own the road, instead of the parties who dedicated it.

A long discussion here arose, when Mr. Wessner presented an ordinance repealing the ordinance accepting the dedication.

The City Solicitor was then called upon, and gave it as his opinion that the repeal would not divent the title from the city. The road might be vacated by taking the proper legal steps; but the repeal of the ordinance would effect nothing. The repeal could do no harm, however, if it could do no good. He, however, wanted time to investigate the matter.

Christmas morning having proved rather dull to our Kentucky neighbors, a young couple, residing in Lexington, determined to celebrate it by cloping and accordingly started for this city on the afternoen train on the Kentucky Central Railroad, and in due time Kentucky Central Railroad, and in due time arrived at the Spencer House, the paradise of fugacious lovers. The two were young, and exceedingly rural; and their conduct soon convinced the initiated attendants of that hotel that they had been thwarted in their bymeneal inclinations by hard-hearted parents or guardians, opposed to what is satirically termed the "decrees of Heaven." The emotions betrayed by the fugitives were various; modest in the extreme, they were unable to conceal their fondness from other guests in the drawing-room, mingled with a cort of triamph at their success, and other guests in the drawing-room, mingled with a sort of triumph at their success, and fear lest they might yet be overtaken, at once enlisted the sympathy of all who observed them.

At length the young man went to the office and inquired for the proprietor, alleging that he had some very private business, which could be transacted with no other parties. Mr. Albert Barlow, the clerk, stated that neither of them were in, but that he could and would attend to any thing the be could and would attend to any thing the ruralist might unfold.

Of this the young man seemed skeptical, and commenced pacing the floor, exhibiting the greatest restlessness, and finally entered the greatest restlessness, and finally entered the drawing-room, from which he again issued, after a short consultation with the young woman, his late companion, and approaching the clerk, said:

"Sir, there's a lady in the room; she wants to marry me, and I want to marry her, had; can you do any thing for us?"

Mr. Barlow replied that every thing matrimonial should be arranged, in a short time, and in less than an hour the ceremony had been performed, and the happy couple were united by the firmest ties that the law, whether "higher" or "lower, "recognizes.

Soon after, the bridegroom approached the desk of the office, and commenced looking over the register. The clerk inquired what he desired, and received for a reply that he only desired to see the arrivals. But hismanner betrayed the fact that his mind was not easy, but what his troubles were no one not easy, but what his troubles were no one could conjecture. After walking around the office for about twenty minutes, he repaired to the book again, and said to Mr. Barlow, a low tone: "Hadn't you better change the register and give us one room, now we're married?"

"That is already changed," replied Mr. B.
"You are marked for the same room."

"Well," replied the gratified Kentuckian, surprised at such thoughtfulness. "Well, show me up, quick, for I am very sleepy." PROBABLE HORRIBLE DRATH OF Two Istroxicated Mex.—Late one evening last summer, two men, apparently lumbermen, in a state of intoxication and having a bottle of liquor with them, obtained shelter for the night in the barn of a farm near Ottowa, C. W. There was at the time a load of hay standing by the barn, and on the following morning the farmer pitched it into the mow, and totally forgetting his temporary guests, continued to heap the rest of his crop. Lately a frightful stench has proceeded from the barn and the cattle refused to touch the bay, and it is feared that the unfortusate wanderers are rotting beneath it, having been smothered in their druskes steep.

The Mississippi at St. Louis is still de-clining, with four feet scant to Cairo, and navigation entirely suspended for the pres-ent at the former city. We learn that the well-known steamer T.

week enting on Friday noon tast, were sweaty-seven.

The receipts do not give the most favorable indications of an improvement in business. Cotton is not coming in as it ought to. Sugar and molassor receipts are behind these of last year, and the 72, 000 sacks oc. corn which figure in our statement are the only evidence of any article in Western produce. The fact that only six St. Louis beats are among the arrivals sufficiently accounts for the great decline in fluor. Beef, pork and bacon will increase in receipts when the killing season is fairly over up the Ohio River.

An over-prudent Frenchman, fully decided

An over-prudent Frenchman, fully decided to end his wretched existence, went to a post set up by the examide, a little before high tide. He had provided himself with a ladder, a rope, a pistol, a bundle of matches and a vial of poisson. For he intended to poisson, to hang, to drown, to burn himself and to blow out his brains. Therefore, tying one end of the rope to the top of the post and the other end around his neck, he went up the ladder. Then he resolutely took the dose of poison, set his clothes on fire, and just as he was prepared to kick the ladder away, he applied the muzzle of his pistol to his forchesal in order to scatter his brains to the four winds. His last hope was that the tide would soon reach his high place, and covering his body, complete the work.

Unfortunately for the execution of this complicated plan, the jerk which he made to throw down the ladder, as he was going to shoot himself, changed the position of the pistol, and the ball, instead of killing him, cut in two the slender rope which was his only support. He fell into the sea, and the matches left in his pockets, which had already reduced into ashes a good portion of his coat skirt, were immediately put out. Moreover, the few draughts of bring water which the man took unconsciously, acting as; an antidote, counteracted the effect of the pelsos, and the would-be suicide, washed away by the tide, was finally left on the each, slowly to recover his senses and find hoself, in spite of all his measures, unhanced water and the seal of the pelson, and the would-be suicide, washed away by the tide, was finally left on the each, slowly to recover his senses and find hoself, in spite of all his measures, unhanced water his proper.
